- ELET as a serious social problem in Europe.

Early leaving of education and training (ELET) and low-skilled young people. Reducing ELET to less than 10% by 2020 is one of the key benchmarks of EU cooperation in education. Despite the decrease in recent years, we are still far away from the 2020 European target of 10 %. The countries represented in this partnership are some of the worst cases in Europe (PT 4th, IT 5th, BG 6th, HU 7th and UK 8th.) ELET has deep consequences on youth unemployment that have reached alarming rates (EU average in 2016 was 20% but in many countries much higher – Italy 42%, Portugal 32%, Bulgaria 22%, Hungary 20% and UK 16%).

- The need for new learning environments

Second chance education is today a relevant compensatory measure to reduce ELET. social exclusion and unemployment. It has proved to be an adequate and successful approach for young people at risk all over Europe, by implementing suitable programs that provide an adequate learning environment for young people, exploring different kind of interactive art techniques and creative methods to meet the interests, abilities and experiences of young people. It fits perfectly into the European Policy Strategy 2020.

- The importance of compensation measures as 2nd Chance Schools

Many plans and policies, in different countries, aiming to reduce early leaving are mainly focused on prevention and intervention measures, within schools and involving just school populations. There is not enough social awareness of the large number of young people that are out of school and don't intend to go back. That's why all European relevant documents are highlighting the importance of the so-called compensation measures, among those second chance schools.

Europe faces a big challenge with early leaving - really a social emergency!

Reducing early leavers to 10% by 2020 is not only one of the 5 main goals of Europe 2020 strategy, it's an important indicator of the quality of our education, our social system and our democracy.

The European Commission has been producing very clear guidelines for every member State to implement comprehensive strategies based on reliable information systems and integrating prevention, intervention and compensation measures.

National Strategies to Reduce ELET Guiding Principles:

Early leaving concerns everybody.

The school must OPEN up to the public space and the community, responding to the diversity of the public attending it.

Children and young people at the center of policies, ensuring that their voices are heard in the definition and implementation of measures.

Early warning systems are needed to identify young people at risk of early leaving for timely intervention.

Schools need to become meaningful and relevant spaces for young people.

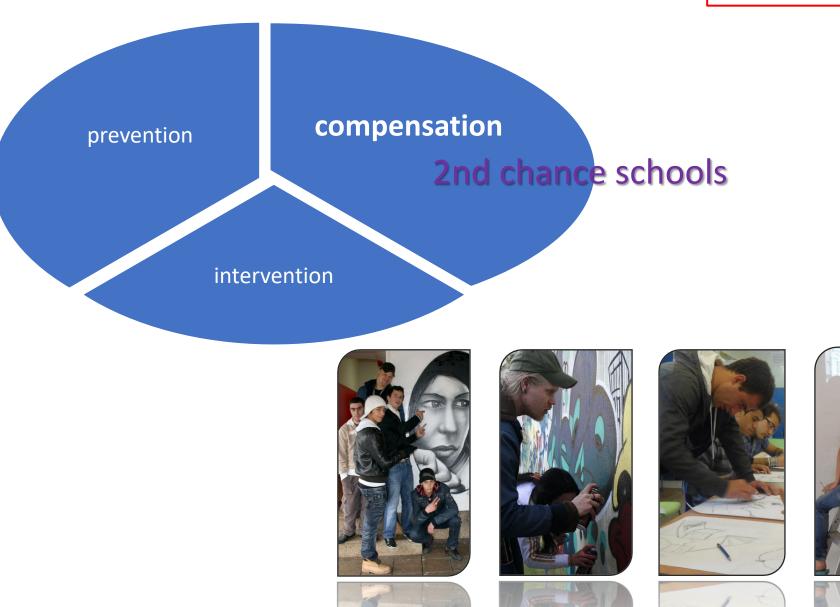

Vocational education, even not being the only solution, plays a crucial role in diversityoriented training

Smooth transitions between different levels of education should be ensured.

Learnings must be validated and accredited by certification systems allowing young people to go back to education without difficulty.

National Policy to reduce early leaving An articulated framework of measures

TIP OBJECTIVES

- sharing and networking experiences and good practices in using creative methods in social and educational work addressing vulnerable young people.

- providing challenging mobilities to promote exchange of experiences and professional development for second chance education staff;

- raising social awareness for the needs of vulnerable young people and developing policy recommendations at european, national, regional and local levels supporting second chance education policies and systems.

- developing a school-based staff training program and a toolkit of non formal creative practices, as relevant and usable products for practicioners to extend their professional capacities and to engage as active agents of change;

- promoting local cooperation with organizations and authorities, bridging, disseminating, multiplying and giving visibility to the project and consolidating results.

TIP will establish a community of practices, supporting networking among organizations, exploring the potential of non formal approaches, ART and Creativity in education. Arts develop self-confidence and self-esteem, increase creativity and awareness, develop community identities, diminish social isolation, promote intercultural dialogue, reduce the impact of poverty, and activate social change. Using arts as a tool for social and educational inclusion work, is still a very innovative and effective approach in education.
